INTRODUCTION

Pope John Paul II elaborated that each disciple is a missionary person.

“This passion [to proclaim Christ and the kingdom of God] will not fail to stir in the Church a new sense of mission, which cannot be left to a group of “specialists” but must involve the responsibility of all the members of the People of God. Those who have come into genuine contact with Christ cannot keep him for themselves, they must proclaim him. A new apostolic outreach is needed, which will be lived as the everyday commitment of Christian communities and groups.”

Apostolic Letter, “Novo Millennio Ineunte” 6 Jan 2001).

Since their creation, through the words of their founder and those of their different leading couples, the Teams of Our Lady have asserted the importance of the mission of the couples in the family, in the Church and in the world. This principle is also included in the 1947 constitutional Charter of the Movement and in the founding documents issued since (The Teams of Our Lady 1976, the Second Wind 1988, the Guide 2000).

1. WHAT IS A COUPLE ON MISSION?

In the Teams of Our Lady, each couple is on mission, as a consequence of their baptism and their marriage.

They as couples are entrusted with God’s love. They show God’s love to each other in their daily lives as a life-long challenge. This makes them witnesses of God’s love and this witness reaches out to others thus becoming the basis of their mission as a couple.

This love materializes within the sacrament of marriage through a life-long commitment, freely chosen, which finds its source in the sacrament of baptism of each one of the spouses. The sacrament of marriage over the years grows and develops in the love of the couple and in the love of God. It is the conjunction of these two loves which allows them to carry out their mission of baptized and Christian couple.

The couple participates in God’s creation through their married and family life through the spouses’ relationship with each other and with others. In sharing daily life, each spouse is affecting the other and can say to each other, “I am who I am thanks to you”.

Jesus gave us an example of life and love. After he had washed the disciples’ feet he said:

'I give you a new commandment. Love one another. You must love one another just as I have loved you. It is by your love for one another that everyone will recognise you as my disciples.' (John 13:34-35).

This new commandment of love is the basis of service and gives the couple the meaning of their mission, which is the heart of their marriage.

Recognizing their weaknesses and limits, some couples have made the choice of forming teams within the movement of the Teams of Our Lady and of acquiring the means for a life of married spirituality.

Therefore couples are called:

- ❖ To be open to the gift of faith, to recognise this gift in themselves and in others and to express it in their daily lives.
- ❖ To set aside time to pray and reflect together in order to find out what the Holy Spirit is asking them to do in their lives.
- ❖ To recognise the gift of marriage as a means of living out God's plan for them.
- ❖ To be open to growth and change and discover the potential within each person.
- ❖ To realise that accepting failure and crisis and overcoming them enables growth.

2. WHERE TO BE A COUPLE ON MISSION?

For most couples their mission occurs in their families, at work, in their communities and in their leisure areas.

Every time they follow and put into practice the teachings and values of the Gospel by the way they live, they contribute to the quality of their life, to their happiness and to that of the members of their community. They are God's living witnesses and are called daily to imitate the life of Christ who promised justice, love, peace and forgiveness.

2.1. The couple

Their mission of love is lived out day by day with their spouse.

The spouses exercise their mission towards each other by faithfulness to the commitments they make at their marriage. This constant care and mutual concern is a way to bear witness to their married love.

"Man and woman 'are no longer two but one flesh' and they are called to grow continually in their communion through day-to-day fidelity to their marriage promise of total mutual self-giving."

(Familiaris Consortio n.19).

They pray together as a couple, for themselves, their family and all the needs of the world and the church. They experience forgiveness and reconciliation. Their mission of love is lived out first of all with their closest neighbour, who is their spouse.

2.2. The family

Couples need to be continually learning to share God's love.

The family is a small Christian community where the children's faith is first lived out. This family, led by the couple, is witness to the families that live around it.

Human love is the image of God's love and is shown by:

- ❖ The way couples put themselves at the service of their families;
- ❖ The way they witness to families that live around them
- ❖ The way they welcome those who come to their home
- ❖ The way they share their bread

2.3. The team

The team, too, is a small Christian community where couples and families journey together. Here, the couple's mission is to reach out and support the other individuals or couples and to be looking for ways to better put into practice the endeavours.

In the team, couples share their experiences and encourage each other to reach out to others as witnesses of the Gospel. They thus strengthen each other and show their commitment in the movement of the Teams of Our Lady.

2.4. The Church

We are the sign and witnesses of God.

"Modern man listens more willingly to witnesses than to teachers, and if he does listen to teachers, it is because they are witnesses." Pope Paul VI, Evangelii Nuntiandi, n 41

How else will the world know of the beauty and values of Christian love and marriage, if they are not being conveyed by words and example?

"This is the mission that the Church insistently and urgently asks of the Teams of Our Lady: Without the love of married couples, without the families that have learned to share, without communities of faith formed by couples, like the Teams, it will be difficult for the Church to convince our world that the Gospel is a calling for love and that love can be truly lived"
(Second Wind, 1, 2)

Team members may be called upon to share in the Church the talents received from God, by participating in the common effort to fully live in their communities, specially in their parishes, their dioceses, their movement, etc.

They are asked to give their support to those who accept responsibilities and to collaborate with the projects answering to the growing aspirations of the couples. “No one is allowed to remain inactive” (John Paul II). Therefore, all their activities, including the missionary ones, ought to be carried out in perfect harmony in faithfulness to the Gospel.

Couples need to be conscious of couples and individual who are outside the Teams movement and be generous in witness and in sharing its riches. (As per John Paul II’s speech to the Teams leading couples in January 2003).

2.5. The World

As members of the church, the couples are called to proclaim in word and in deed the coming of the Kingdom of God. They may do this in whatever way is applicable to their particular circumstances.

“Now the laity are called in a special way to make the Church present and operative in those places and circumstances where only through them can it become the salt of the earth. Thus every layman, in virtue of the very gifts bestowed upon him, is at the same time a witness and a living instrument of the mission of the Church itself ‘according to the measure of Christ’s bestowal’ (Vatican II, Lumen Gentium n. 33b).

“In collaborating as citizens of this world, in whatever pertains to the upbuilding and conducting of the temporal order, the laity must seek in the light of faith loftier motives of action in their family, professional, cultural, and social life and make them known to others when the occasion arises. Doing this, they should be aware of the fact that they are cooperating with God the creator, redeemer, and sanctifier and are giving praise to Him” (Apostolicam Actuositatem. n. 16 e, 18 Nov. 1965).

3. HOW DOES THE COUPLE EXERCISE ITS MISSION ?

3.1. Introduction

Couples on mission are aware of the difficulties of married and family life, because they listen to the “signs of the times”; they are able to listen, to discern and to respond to the needs of others. They present marriage as a living community of love, as a rich source and expression of their spirituality.

For them, living out their sacramental marriage is a public witness to love, community and the commitment: “until death do us part”. This also encourages and challenges others to seek and follow Christ through the joys and sorrows of life.

“The glory of God is the human person fully alive, and the glory of the human person is the contemplation of God.”
(St Irenaeus).

Couples may often decline accepting specific tasks because of feelings of inadequacy, because of busy lives or because the timing does not seem right.

Mission tasks are often viewed as heavy obligations to be fulfilled instead of recognising that God is inviting couples to use their talents and time.

It is up to the responsible couples to put into practice the trust in God, which leads to the conviction that He will provide all that is needed for the mission, if they can recognise that their talents have been given by the Holy Spirit for the benefit of others.

The couple is a “New Being”, as put by the Rite of Marriage, who must be ever changing, ever growing. Thus, the spouses will be able to face the challenges of the mission to which their baptism, their confirmation, their marriage have led them, to be lived out in the heart of the Eucharist, with a reconciled heart.

*« God said: ...Human couple, my beloved creature, my privileged witness, do you understand why you are so dear to me among all creatures, do you understand the immense hope I entrust upon you?
You are the bearer of my reputation, of my glory, you are for the universe its great reason to hope... because you are love.”* (Fr Henri Caffarel, “Facing Atheism”, Rome, May 1970)

3.2. The challenges

As Couples on mission in the Church of today and the future, members of TEAMS and the Church face these challenges, among others:

- The social and cultural environment in the world is changing. 'Teams of Our Lady' was formed in response to the expectations of couples living their married life. The Church and Teams of Our Lady must consider how to respond to the needs in the current world.
- The role of the laity and the status of married couples are changing to form a trusting partnership with the clergy. Couples feel encouraged to take active and responsible roles in their local Church.
- The Church and the Movement acknowledge the valuable gift God gives a couple in Marriage and recognize the physical union of married couples as an expression of deep physical and spiritual love.
- Members of the Teams of Our Lady establish and continue regular dialogue and two-way listening with Bishops and Priests. This provides a better knowledge of issues connected with marriage and family life and an exchange of experiences.
- Our world is becoming increasingly secular with less observance of organised religion, decreasing religious and priesthood vocations. Some people are rejecting organised religion but are still following Christ. Couples on mission have an opportunity to be the leaven within this secularized world
- The breakdown in marriage and family life in many countries asks for healing, mutual acceptance of people and support. Couples could make themselves available for Church initiatives which would allow for a deeper reflection on married life on the anthropological, psychological and spiritual levels.
- Couples can and often do make a commitment to a future life together prior to a formal sacramental marriage ceremony. Team members can be on mission to these couples and provide support by 'walking alongside' them as they prepare for marriage.
- Couples have undergone the ordeal of separation and divorce. Some do marry again. As baptized people, they are called to participate in the life of the Church, in the respect, however, for its rules. John Paul II said to us: "I wish to say again how spiritually close I feel to them. May they find on their road witnesses of the tenderness and mercy of God!" (John Paul II's speech to the Teams' leading couples on January 20, 2003)

3.3. Vision

The actions of Couples on mission contribute to make possible the following visions:

- Couples in TEAMS are aware of their mission in marriage.
- They carry out their mission by showing the human face of God.
- Families are living communities of God's love, bearing the fruits of the Spirit. These fruits are love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness and self-control. (Galatians 5: 22-23)
- Society perceives the importance of family for its own future.
- All Christian committed couples can receive the support of TEAMS.
- The movement has become more missionary in reaching out to others.
- Through couples who give witness of their love and work in the service of others people perceive the love of God.

3.4. Fields of action

3.4.1. Within the couple

The mission within the couple is one of sanctification. In being Missionary to each other, couple partners are called to:

- Deepen their married spirituality through prayer (Individual and Conjugal) and through faithfulness to TEAMS Endeavours
- Listen to the Word of God and be open to God's message
- Develop and enrich dialogue within the couple
- Live out every day the commitments of their sacrament of marriage.
- Reflect God's love in their married relationship.

3.4.2. Towards other couples

Couples are also called to be on mission by reaching out to other couples by being Missionary Couples through witness/example of happily married spirituality

“Christian couples also have a missionary duty to other couples and a duty to help them. They legitimately desire to pass on to them their experience and show them that Christ is the source of all married life.” (Letter of Pope John Paul II to the leading couples of the Teams in France, November 28, 1997)

The role of the couple on mission towards other couples allows them to:

- Declare the positive aspects of their marriage, whilst also being open and honest about difficulties and challenges and how these can be overcome

- Show the human face of God through their behaviour towards their neighbours
- Be hospitable and welcoming to couples and families
- Take opportunities to celebrate Marriage
- Always have your answer ready for people who ask you the reason for the hope that you have (1 P 3, 15)
- Provide practical, emotional and spiritual support to couples, particularly those undergoing difficulties, being merciful and non-judgmental.
- Participate in marriage programs for couples
- Reach out to and encourage couples to explore the benefits of belonging to TEAMS

3.4.3. Within the family

In today's society, families are not as close knit as they were in the past, with younger generations living at a distance to their parents and grandparents. Many children are rejecting the traditions of their parents including religious observance and marriage.

The concept of "family" is changing. Family nowadays refers to those people with whom the couple share a bond of love, acceptance and responsibility. In order to be faithful to the Gospel and to the Church's teaching, couples on mission must multiply their efforts of holiness.

Here are some of the actions that couples on mission can undertake:

- Witness by showing love and demonstrating hospitality
- Love and accept our children without conditions, reflecting God's love for us
- Proclaim values of forgiveness, tolerance, understanding
- Strengthen prayer and spiritual life in the couple and the family
- Exchange ideas about married spirituality and talk about our relationship with God
- Provide a nurturing environment for growth.
- Include families in many TEAMS activities
- Promote family activities within Parish
- Pray for families and family members
- Work towards making society more family friendly
- Raise awareness of the effects of issues on families

- Counteract negative media representation of family and marriage
- Develop a respect for human nature within our own families
- Be active when families are unjustly treated (for example, asylum seekers, refugees)

3.4.4. Within the Teams of Our Lady

“The Teams of Our Lady wishes to help married couples to live their lives more fully according to the Gospel, with the mutual support of the members of a team and the strength of the Movement as a whole.” (Guide of the Teams of Our Lady. 2000)

The mission within the team is one of “formation and Christian perfection”. The couples support and share with one another in the way that they live out their spiritual and married lives.

Teams of Our Lady, or ‘TEAMS’ is a movement within the Catholic Church and has been set up for sacramentally married couples.

Teams have the mission to “help married couples” and need to respond to the changes that are occurring in society with respect to marriage.

Married couples who belong to different Christian traditions may participate to Teams accepting its Charter and Guide.

The action of couples on mission is necessary at all levels in the Movement: in the individual teams, at the Sector, Region and Super Regional levels and in ERI.

Some of the actions indicated here refer to the Movement as a whole. Some others refer to specific functions within the Movement.

3.4.5. Within the Church

The mission within the Church is one of service. TEAMS is a movement within the Catholic Church and as such participates in the edification of the Church.

“The Second Vatican Council....calls the family the Ecclesia domestica.... Many [single persons] remain without a human family, often due to conditions of poverty... The doors of homes, the ‘domestic church’, and the great family which is the Church must be open to all of them.” (Catechism of The Catholic Church ¹⁶⁵⁸)

□ A Movement of Active Christians

‘Teams of Our Lady’ (TEAMS) is a Movement of Active Christians.

- Couples on mission can help people to be aware that they are church and have received at their baptism a mandate to evangelise.
- Couples on mission can offer the Church their talents and services by taking up responsibilities as couples as well as individuals.

Teams’ couples have a specific vocation for :

- Assist in the preparation and formation of teenagers and young adults for marriage
- Help couples to better celebrate their marriage and to be more aware of the meaning of the sacrament;
- Cooperate with other marriage organizations;
- Reach out, welcome and support couples in difficulty, separated, divorced etc.
- Sponsor younger TEAMS
- Provide a source of prayerful support for the church

□ Presence in the Church

We must help the Church deepen her vision, theology and mystique of the couple as the summit of creation” (Second Wind)

The Teams of Our Lady may:

- Help the local church become more relevant and more supportive to married couples and families.
- Promote marriage in the life of the Church.
- With the Church, read the signs of the times.

- Pray for the Church;
- Encourage formation programs for couples within and outside the Movement.
- Support Widows and Widowers
- Participate in family pastorage, mainly with regards to co-habiting young couples;
- Listen with the Church to the anxieties of the young;
- Help the Young Teams of Our Lady to develop on the international level;
- With the Church, protect children and vulnerable persons.

3.4.6. In the world

“We are called to be a yeast of renewal, not only in the Church, but also in the world. Through our witness, we are called to show that:

Marriage is at the service of love;

Marriage is at the service of happiness;

Marriage is at the service of holiness;

Marriage is at the service of proclaiming and showing that Jesus Christ is the source of all life.” (Santiago, International Formation Session, 2000)

The mission in the World is one of evangelisation, to be the “salt of the earth and the light of the World.”

Teams of Our Lady’ or ‘TEAMS’ is an International Movement with membership in 66 countries. As such its members have opportunities in much of the world to proclaim that Christ is the source of love, and through our marriages to witness to the world that marriage is a way to live this covenant with Christ.

In living such a relationship with Christ, TEAMS couples have the mission of following the way of Christ – to love one another; to love others; to offer service to others; to proclaim the message of Jesus; to stand up for justice and to speak for those who cannot speak for themselves.

A major role for TEAMS Couples and for the Movement is to inspire and lead others, through prayer, sharing, witnessing, discussion and formation, to develop a greater understanding of God.

TEAMS couples are called to be evangelists in the modern world and a major aspect of this evangelisation is to promote sociological, social and political support and recognition for Marriage through

- Everyday evangelisation through people the couple meet
- Witness of their marriage to young people
- Engage with media to promote marriage
- Promote the value of marriage at the political levels
- Establish an exchange of information concerning initiatives related to marriage throughout the world.

4. CONCLUSION

Being a couple on mission is to proclaim by word and action that Christ is the source of love, happiness and holiness found and experienced in marriage..

Being a couple on mission is to pray for the conversion of the world and for those to whom the couple is sent.

All TEAMS couples are concerned by mission : they must always look for the development of new practical ways, in order to accomplish their mission suited to their own locality/region and time.

As Pope John Paul II said in his message for the 50th anniversary of the Charter:

“We must respond to the call of the Church for a new evangelisation based on human love and family life. The Church has most need today of lay married people who have received a formation in which faith and life mutually feed each other.”

5. APPENDIX

5.1. TABLES FOR REFLECTION AND WORK

The elements shown in the tables below are given as a sequence to the document on the couple's mission in the Teams of Our Lady, in order to complement the reflection of those couples or teams who would wish to do so as well as to nurture their project of mission.

Some of the elements which are taken up hereafter may seem redundant. Nevertheless, by respect for the work accomplished by the Mission Satellite Team, the International Leading Team (ERI) found it useful to attach these tables.

Formation of couples for mission. The examples of couples can inspire others. Promote stories in Church Bulletins, magazines on life experiences of Couples being missionary in reaching out to others.
Couples and Church	The Church could encourage married couples to be involved in the Church as a couple	In a Parish it is often hard to get couples with young children to be involved in parish life because of their family commitments. Encourage married couples to be involved on committees etc. as a couple.	Greater involvement and commitment of couples within the church and greater ability for young couples with family commitments to be involved. Couples would participate in areas where they have expertise and offer a dimension not available to single people. A TEAMS couple share roles and tasks as a couple. E.g. they are a joint member of the parish council based on the concept that in marriage 'they become one'. Either or both of them could attend Parish Council meeting but would only have one vote between them. This demonstrates in a practical way the importance of marriage in the church. It allows couples to become involved in the life of the church as a couple rather than as individual members.
Teams in the Parish	Help local church become more missionary and more supportive to married couples and families.	Make the Sacrament and the commitment of the couples more relevant in Marriage celebrations. Have special Sundays to celebrate marriage. ERI	Give support to married couples to raise profile of the Sacrament of Marriage within the Church and in the world. .	Under inspiration from ERI promote the writing of a Theology of Marriage. This could be done in conjunction with other marriage organisations in the church e.g. INTAMS.	The Sacrament of Marriage is recognized in its complementarity with the other Sacraments Sponsor a study of verses Genesis 2: 15-25, which, as a study topic, will be a valuable resource for future preparation and post marriage support. This could be used ecumenically

Team	Moral and spiritual Support for Widows/Widowers and Divorced people.	Set up support groups within the church and world to offer positive support. Couples Sectors / Regions Super-Regions ERI	Meet regularly with the Bishops and Clergy to discuss how we as Church can help co-habiting couples that have made a commitment to each other, belong to the Church. Couples on mission to seek out and visit co-habiting couples..	Many co-habiting couples are genuinely using their living together as a preparation time for marriage and in their eyes how they are living is not sinful. They however feel rejected by the Church. Co-habiting couples with a view to marriage could make a formal commitment to preparation for marriage. A Team couple could walk with each couple as they prepare for marriage..	The couple would have a greater awareness of God in their lives and of the commitment to marriage. For many couples this would lead to marriage within the Church. The couple would feel supported and not rejected by the Church.
Teams	TEAMS to reach out to young people. Couples from Teams to accompany Young Teams Groups	Promote TEAMS for single young people Give also financial support.	Increase the number of Young Teams Groups in the world.

Who	Action	How	Outcome
Couples, Regions, Super Regions	Engage with media to promote marriage as a vocation.	Set up a group of writers at Super-Regional level who would write positive statements on marriage for TV, newspapers, magazines etc Stories to be written about the life of couples who have had successful marriages and submitted to magazines to witness that marriages can and do work. Advise on production of TV documentaries, Videos Write articles for magazines and newspapers, Write letters to "Readers Columns"	Couples going into marriage will understand the attitudes and requirements that are necessary for a successful marriage.
